

MANAGING YOUR INTERNET and INTRANET SERVICES

the information and library professional's guide to strategy

Peter Griffiths

Contents

Introduction: the Internet phenomenon	ix
Acknowledgments xi
1 The Internet revolution	1
The importance of the world wide web 1; Who uses the Internet? 4; Telling or selling? 6; Intranets and extranets 8; What is happening to the technology? 9; Summary 10; References 11
2 LIS professionals and the web	13
Why have information professionals become so important? 13; A natural role for library and information professionals 14; Too much opportunity for information professionals? 17; More skills of the library and information professional 18; Summary 22; References 23
3 Getting on the web	25
Why have a website? 26; Who is your audience? 26; Which of these purposes is your site for? 28; Pitching the level right for your target customers: content and technical considerations 31; Resource issues: recruitment and training 32; The web and your business strategy 33; Using business analysis to keep your strategies aligned 34; Handling e-mail 34; Summary 35; References 35
4 The business plan: getting support in the organization	37
Making the business case 37; Internet website 38; Publicizing the organization: the 'shop window' website 39; Budgeting 43; Unquantifiable benefits 46; Doing business through e-commerce – the ‘market place’ website 46; Communicating with customers and other interested users of your site 49; Providing information 49; Selling the service to the organization 50; The business case for your intranet 51; Reporting back to the organization 52; Summary 52; References 53

- 5 The webmaster 55
What is a webmaster? 56; Roles in the website: building the team 59; Freelance webmasters 61; Skills and qualifications 63; Advertising for a webmaster 64; Holding on to your investment 65; Training 69; Future prospects for webmasters 69; Summary 70; References 70
- 6 Organizing your website 73
What makes a good library website? 73; Organizing your site 76; How to annoy people with your website 77; The ‘top ten’ features of library websites 83; A tale of two cities 86; Summary 87; References 88
- 7 Publishing your site – managing service provision 89
The 24 hour library website 89; In-house or outsourced? 92; Other areas of outsourcing 97; The tender documents 99; Reaching your agreement with the supplier 99; Summary 105; References 105
- 8 Publishing your site: registering, authoring, design and accessibility 107
Choosing and registering domain names 108; Registration 110; Authoring 114; Publishing a site in languages other than English 117; Making your site accessible to all your users 121; Getting your site known inside and outside the organization 124; Usage statistics 131; Summary 131; References 132
- 9 Publishing your site: managing the content 135
Setting out the content 136; Keeping your website up to date 136; Acceptable use policies 140; Personal websites 142; Some other issues 142; Style guides 144; Copyright and intellectual property 147; Links to other websites 149; Image thieves 154; Some other legal considerations 155; Discussion groups and chat rooms 156; A cautionary tale 158; Summary 158; References 159

- 10 Your intranet 161
Why intranets? 161; The potential of intranets 162;
Intranets and the information and library service 163; .
Useful features for intranets 164; Some examples of successful intranets 168; Managing your intranet 170; The business case 170; Information overload and knowledge management 171; Intranet portals 172; Summary 173;
References 173
- 11 The future of your website 175
Keeping your website up to date 175; Monitoring your site
178; Keeping up with change 179; User feedback 181;
New web technologies 182; Summary 183; References
184
- 12 Golden rules of web page content 185
Golden rules 185; Sample frames 189
- 13 Glossary and further information sources 197
Glossary 197; General reading 209; Internet resources
212; Mailing lists 213; Codes of practice and acceptable use policies 214
- Index 215