

LIZ CHAPMAN

managing acquisitions in library and information services

Contents

List of figures vii

Acknowledgments ix

1 Introduction 1

What is acquisitions? 1

How this book is arranged 3

2 Pre-order checking 4

Requests to purchase 4

Stock-checking 8

Reading lists 10

Bibliographic data 10

Suppliers as information sources 18

3 Publishers and publishing 21

Electronic materials 22

Information on publishers 23

Information from publishers 23

4 Beyond the basic book 31

A change of form 31

Other collections 32

Series and continuations 33

- European language materials 37
- British government publications 41
- Music 44
- Audiovisual materials 47

5 Suppliers 50

- Choosing suppliers 50
- Online services from specialist suppliers 59
- Internet suppliers 59
- Consortium purchasing 60
- Ordering foreign material 61
- Outsourcing 62
- Evaluating suppliers 63

6 Ordering 66

- Information required by the supplier 66
- Information required by acquisitions 69
- Editing orders 72
- Order input 75
- Automated order systems 76

7 Out-of-the-ordinary ordering 80

- Urgent orders 80
- Direct orders 82
- Standing orders and continuations 84
- Blanket or open orders 86
- Material on trial 86
- Electronic publications 89
- Out-of-print and second-hand material 91
- Book sales and auctions 93
- Remainder and review dealers 93
- Reprints 94
- There is no such thing as a free book 96
- A time to refrain from ordering 98

8 When the orders arrive 99

- The mail 99
- Checking in orders 99
- Delivery problems 103
- Accessions 110
- Statistics 111

9 Finance and budgets 113

- Financial guidelines 113
- Budgets 113
- Prices 116
- The financial year 118
- Invoices and payment 119
- Financial records and auditing 125

10 The way ahead 128

- Keeping up with developments 129

Further reading 131*References 136*Glossary 143*Index 147