

EDUARDO A VASCONCELLOS

URBAN TRANSPORT,
ENVIRONMENT
AND EQUITY

The case for developing countries

CONTENTS

List of Tables, Figures and Boxes	iv
List of Acronyms and Abbreviations	viii
Acknowledgements	x
Part 1 Introduction
1 Introduction	3
Part 2 Current conditions of urban transport in developing countries
2 Current transport and traffic conditions in developing countries	11
Part 3 How it happened
3 Sociological and political approaches to transport	33
4 The organization of urban space	41
5 The city, the circulation system and urban transport policies	51
6 The use of roads: the microphysics of space	59
7 The political issue: agents in urban transport policy	75
8 The institutional issue	84
9 The technical issue: traditional transport planning	96
10 Non-motorized transport	111
11 Public transport	120
12 Private transport	145
13 Mobility	166
14 Space, environment and energy	179
15 Traffic accidents	196
16 The urban transport crisis in developing countries	210
Part 4 Proposals
17 Policy assumptions and principles	231
18 Proposals for urban planning	251
19 Transport planning proposals	264
20 Traffic planning and management	279
Part 5 Conclusions
21 Conclusions	297
Notes	301
References	306
Index	324