

EURICOM Monographs:
Communicative Innovations and Democracy

Editor: Nicholas W. Jankowski

Ethnic Minorities, Electronic Media,
and the
Public Sphere
A Comparative Study

Donald R. Browne

Contents

Preface

1	Laying the Groundwork	1
	What Is Important About Ethnic Media	3
	Nature of the Study	4
	Scholarly Traditions	5
	What Is an Ethnic Minority	6
	Civil Society and Public Sphere	8
	Habermas and the Public Sphere	9
	A Structural Schema	11
	Theories and Concepts	15
	A Brief History	17
	Notes	32
2	What Are the Ethnic Minority Electronic Media?	39
	The Electronic Media Family	40
	The Geography of the Electronic Media	47
	Summary	62
	Notes	63
3	Policies and Policymaking	69
	The Nature of Policymaking	69
	Policymaking in the Real World	79
	The FCC and Minority Preference Policies	83
	Community Radio in New South Africa	87
	Multicultural Radio in Berlin; SFB4—Radio MultiKulti	90
	Australia and the Special Broadcasting Service	80
	Policymaking: A Summary of Experiences	93
	Financing the Services	96
	Summary	106
	Notes	107

4	Audience as Community, Community as Audience	113
	Goal Setting	114
	A Case Study of Goal Setting	118
	Audience as Community	120
	A Case Study of Audience as Community: Zoom Black Magic
	Liberation Radio	122
	Community as Audience	124
	A Case Study of Community as Audience: Bush Radio	125
	Identifying and Connecting with the Audience	127
	Conducting Research	130
	A Case Study: Conducting Surveys at Tumeke-FM	131
	Media Service as Community	133
	Summary	136
	Notes	137
5	Programming	141
	Genres: Information	142
	Genres: Entertainment	150
	Genres: Educational	156
	Preserving, Safeguarding, and Extending the Mother Tongue	160
	Reaching Younger Audiences	163
	Building Electronic Bridges: Programming Practices and the
	Public Sphere	166
	The Audience	171
	Summary	173
	Notes	173
6	Conclusions and Projections	179
	The Importance of Structural Factors	179
	Factors, Ethnic Minority Services, and Participation in the
	Public Sphere	185
	The "Dark Side" of Ethnic Minority Electronic Media	197
	Ethnic Minority Media, Mainstream Media, and Serving the Public	200
	Theories and Concepts	203
	Future Developments	205
	Notes	213
	Appendix: Implications for Participation in the Public
	Sphere by Ethnic Minorities: Some Observations on Habermas	219
	Bibliography	221
	Author Index	243
	Subject Index	249