

Edited by John Stephenson

Teaching & Learning Online

Pedagogies for New Technologies

Contents

Notes on contributors	v
Introduction	ix
Part 1: From theory to practice: the academics
1 Learners still learn from experience when online Shirley Alexander and David Boud	3
2 Learning technology and learning relationships Terry Mayes	16
3 Problems with online learning are systemic, not technical Stewart Hase and Allan Ellis	27
Part 2: Researchers
4 Online learning: it is all about dialogue, involvement, support and control – according to the research Marion Coomey and John Stephenson	37
5 Making the right connections: improving quality in online learning Barry Jackson and Kyriaki Anagnostopoulou	53
Part 3: Practitioners
6 Effective facilitation of online learning: the Open University experience Robin Mason	67
7 Finding the instructor in post-secondary online learning: pedagogical, social, managerial and technological locations Curtis J Bonk, Jamie Kirkley, Noriko Hara and Vanessa Paz Dennen	76
8 Exploring the development of critical thinking skills through a Web-supported problem-based learning environment Ron Oliver	98
9 Distance learning through educational networks: the global view experience Dennis Schlais and Richard Davis	112

10 Scenarios for PhD courses in a European network environment, as supported by EuroPACE Jef van den Branden	127
Part 4: Transition
11 Teacher effectiveness and online learning Sisko Mällinen	139
12 From conventional to distance education: adopting a pedagogy and managing the transformation Mark Woodman, Maya Milankovic-Atkinson, Chris Sadler, Alan Murphy	150
Part 5: Designers and producers
13 On the way to online pedagogy Martin Good	165
14 Designing online learning opportunities, orchestrating experiences and managing learning Keith Shaw	175
15 Course design for online learning – what's gone wrong? Quentin Whitlock	182
Part 6: The vanguard
16 Towards an androgogy for living in an information society David Dickinson and Valerie Stewart	195
17 Television and learning: ways of connecting media and learning Steve Pollock and David Squire	207
Endpiece: Learner-managed learning – an emerging pedagogy for learning online John Stephenson	219
Index	225