

Karin Aijmer

English Discourse Particles

Evidence from a corpus

udies in Corpus Linguistics

Table of contents

Key	to pro	sodic transcription	хv
Ack	nowled	dgements	VII
Сна	APTER	1
Intr	oducti	on	1
1.1	What are discourse particles? 1
1.2	The d	ata 3
1.3	Outli	ne of the book 5
1.4	Disco	urse particles and previous approaches 6
	1.4.1	Speech act theory 8
	1.4.2	Relevance theory 8
	1.4.3	Schiffrin's integrational approach 12
1.5	1.5 A functional perspective on discourse particles 14
	1.5.1	Indexicality 14
	1.5.2	Grammaticalisation as a criterion of discourse particlehood 16
1.6	Home	onymy or polysemy? 19
	1.6.1	Determining the core meaning 23
		Number of functions 25
1.7	Clues distinguishing between propositional function and discourse function 27
1.8	Form and function 27
		Functional clues 28
	Prospective and retrospective orientation 37
	The functional domains of discourse particles 38
1.11	Disco	urse particles on the textual level 40
	1.11.1	The frame function 41
	1.11.2	The qualifying function 45

1.12	Disco	arse particles with a phatic function 48
	1.12.1	Phatic discourse particles and politeness 49
	1.12.2	Phatic discourse particles and floor-holding 50
1.13	Phatic	discourse particles and pairing 51
1.14	Disco	urse particles and style 53
1.15	Concl	usion 54
	APTER 2
The	_	changer now	57
2.1		luction 57
2.2	The S-use and D-use of now 58
2.3	•	rammaticalisation of now 62
2.4	Now a	Now and structural and contextual indicators 64
	2.4.1	Now and collocations 64
	2.4.2	Prosodic analysis of now 65
	2.4.3	Now and text type 68
	2.4.4	Now in monologues and dialogues 70
2.5	The co	ore meaning and core function of now 70
	2.5.1	Comparing well and now 71
2.6	The d	iscourse functions of now 72
	2.6.1	Now as a textual particle 73
2.7	Now 1	marking an element as backgrounded 85
	2.7.1	Now as a marker of elaboration or subtopic 85
	2.7.2	Explanation, clarification, support 86
2.8	Now a	and affective meaning 87
	2.8.1	Now and affective stance 90
	2.8.2	Now introducing a disclaimer 91
	2.8.3	Now and a change of footing 93
	2.8.4	Now as hearer-oriented intensifier (modal particle) 93
2.9	Concl	usion 95
Сн	APTER S	3
The	interje	ections oh and ah	97
3.1		duction 97	- 1
3.2		nd lexical collocation 100
-		ndexicality of oh 101
3.4		ore meaning and function of ah 103

3.5	Functional indicators 104
-	3.5.1	Collocation with other discourse particles 104
	3.5.2	The distribution of oh over different text types 105
	3.5.3	Prosodic properties of oh 108
3.6	Oh and discourse functions 111
	3.6.1	Pure surprise 112
	3.6.2	Arriving at a realisation 113
	3.6.3	Oh in clarification sequences 115
	3.6.4	Assertion and emphasis 116
	3.6.5	Reaction or objection: oh but, oh because 117
3.7	Oh afte	er statements: oh or yes? 119
	3.7.1	Oh and pairing with other discourse particles 121
3.8	Oh in e	elicitational contexts 123
	3.8.1	Oh in reaction questions 124
	3.8.2	Oh and clarification questions 126
	3.8.3	Non-committal answers and evasions 127
	3.8.4	Oh as a follow-up signal 131
3.9	Topica	lizers and backchannels 132
	3.9.1	Newsmarks and reopeners 132
	3.9.2	Backchannels 135
	3.9.3	Oh and assessment 137
	3.9.4	Acceptance and endorsement 138
3.10	Oh and frameshifting 139
	3.10.1	Asides and comments 141
	3.10.2	Change to direct quotation 142
3.11	A comparison between oh and ah 145
3.12	Oh, ah	and politeness 148
3.13	Conch	usion 151
Сна	APTER 4
The	interp	ersonal particle just	153
4.1	Introd	luction 153
4.2		An adverb or a discourse particle? 155
4.3	The co	ore meaning and core function of just 157

4.4 Just and grammaticalisation 160

4.5	Functi	ional indicators 161
	4.5.1	Just and collocations 161
	4.5.2	The textual distribution of just 161
	4.5.3	Prosodic properties of just 162
4.6		s and politeness markers 163
	-	nd positive politeness 164
	4.7.1	Just and extreme adjectives and verbs 164
4.8	Just an	id negative politeness 168
	4.8.1	Just and indirectness 168
4.9	Just an	id persuasion 170
4.10	Conch	usion 173
Сна	PTER 5
The	ʻadjust	er' sort of	175
5.1	Hedge	$ 175
5.2	Sort of and 'type of' 176
5.3	The co	ore meaning and function of sort of 178
5.4	Sort of	and grammaticalisation 180
5.5	Lingui	stic clues to function 181
	5.5.1	The grammatical properties of (a) sort of 182
	5.5.2	Prosodic features of sort of 187
	5.5.3	Collocations 189
	_	and text type 190
5.7		nctions of sort of 191
5.8	8 Evidential sort of 192
	5.8.1	Sort of as an 'adjuster word' 192
	5.8.2	,
	5.8.3	Sort of and number approximation 196
	5.8.4	Lexical imprecision 197
	5.8.5	Sort of and self-repair 198
5.9	Affecti	ve sort of 199
	5.9.1	Sort of and downtoning 199
	5.9.2	Hedging strong opinions 201
	5.9.3	Sort of and common ground 202
	5.9.4	Sort of as a negative politeness strategy 205
		re politeness in the COLT Corpus 206
	Sort of and kind of 207
5.12	Conclusion 209

Сна	pter 6
		th vague reference: 'and that sort of thing'	211
6.1	Introd	uction 211
6.2	Category hedge or discourse particle 214
6.3	Tags and indexicality 217
6.4	Tags ar	nd grammaticalisation 217
6.5	The core meaning and core function of referent-final tags 218
	6.5.1	Constraints on the use of tags 220
6.6	Types of tags 221
	6.6.1	The form and function of referent-final particles 221
	6.6.2	Fixed and semi-fixed expressions 224
	6.6.3	Referent-final tags and compositionality 226
6.7	Lingui	stic clues to the function of the tag 228
	6.7.1	Collocations 228
	6.7.2	Prosodic properties of the tag 230
	6.7.3	Text type and socially conditioned variation 232
6.8	The function of referent-final tags 234
6.9	And-tags 234
	6.9.1	The 'concretization' function 234
	6.9.2	The intensifying 'and everything' tag 240
6.10	The or	-tag 244
		The tag as an approximator 244
	6.10.2	The tag as a tentativeness hedge 244
6.11	Creative uses of the tag 247
6.12	Conclusion 248
_	_
_	PTER 7
	-	ation marker actually	251
7.1	Introduction 251
7.2	Criteria for the discourse particle actually 252
	Actually and grammaticalisation 254
	Actually, in fact, really 255
7.5		onal indicators 256
	7.5.1	The distribution of actually 256
		¥ /
	7.5.3	The prosodic properties of actually 262

XII Table of contents

7.6	The contrastive and emphatic function of actually 265
	7.6.1	Actually as a contrastive marker 266
	7.6.2	Emphasis of individual position 269
	7.6.3	Actually and elaboration 270
	7.6.4	Actually as a marker of subjectivity and evaluation 272
7.7	Conclu	usion 274
	APTER 8 clusion		277
Refe	rences		281
Nan	ne inde	ĸ	291
Subj	ect ind	ex	295	