

PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE SERIES

SCHOOL REFORM AND THE SCHOOL LIBRARY MEDIA SPECIALIST

Sandra Hughes-Hassell
Violet H. Harada

Contents

Illustrations	xi
Foreword	xiii
David V. Loertscher
Acknowledgments	xv
Introduction	xvii
Violet H. Harada and Sandra Hughes-Hassell
Academic Excellence	xviii
Accountability	xviii
Diversity	xix
Digital Literacy	xix
Professional Renewal and Leadership	xix
The School Library Media Specialist and School Reform	xx
Overview of the Book	xx
Librarian as Change Agent	xx
Partners in Student Achievement	xx
Developing Literacy in the Twenty-First Century	xxi
Serving Diverse Student Populations	xxi
Building Professionalism	xxi
The Journey Begins	xxii

I.	Librarian as Change Agent	1
1.	Change Agency: An Essential Role for School Library Media Specialists	3
	Sandra Hughes-Hassell and Violet H. Harada
	What Is Change Agency and What Do Change Agents Do?	3
	What Core Capacities Are Required to Be an Effective Change Agent?	4
	What Are Some Key Points about the Change Process?	7
	What Assets Do Library Media Specialists Bring to the Change Process?	9
	Strategies for Becoming a Change Agent	9
	Strategies for Acting As a Change Agent	12
	Why Act As a Change Agent?	12
	Final Thoughts	15
II.	Partners in Student Achievement	17
2.	The Impact of Standards-Based Education on School Library Media Programs	19
	Marjorie Pappas
	The Beginning of the Standards Movement	19
	The No Child Left Behind Act	21
	Accountability	21
	Choice	22
	Flexibility	22
	Improving Teacher Quality State Grant Program	22
	NCLB, Reading and Literacy Programs	23
	Science Testing Begins in 2007	24
	A Report Card on No Child Left Behind	24
	Quality Counts Data	25
	Accountability and the Annual Yearly Progress (AYP) Goals	26
	Narrowing the Curriculum	27
	One Size Does Not Fit All	27
	Reading Educators and NCLB	28
	NCLB and the School Library Media Program	29
	Potentially Positive Impacts	29
	Potentially Negative Impacts	31
	Reauthorization of NCLB and School Library Media Specialists	32
3.	Teaching for Understanding	37
	Barbara K. Stripling
	What Is Understanding?	37

What Needs to Be Understood? Who Gets to Say?	39
How Is Understanding Developed?	40
Background Knowledge	40
Cognitive Processes	41
Habits of Mind	42
Metacognition	42
How Is Understanding Developed in the Real World?	43
How Do We Teach for Understanding?	43
How Do We Design Inquiry-Based Instruction That Leads to Understanding?	44
Target Specific Understandings	44
Determine How Students Will Demonstrate Their Learning	44
Design the Instructional Activities	45
Concept Map: The Connect Phase of Inquiry	45
Six Thinking Hats Questioning: The Wonder Phase of Inquiry	47
Construction of Context: The Investigate Phase of Inquiry	47
Corroborating Information, Verifying Sources: The Investigate Phase of Inquiry	47
Narrative Framework: The Construct Phase of Inquiry	48
Constructive Conversation: The Construct Phase of Inquiry	49
Gallery Walk: The Express Phase of Inquiry	49
Reflection Logs: The Reflect Phase of Inquiry	49
How Do We Invite Students to Think Metacognitively about the Process of Developing Understanding in All Content Areas?	50
What Are the Challenges That Students Encounter When They Are Trying to Develop Understanding?	50
How Do Librarians and Classroom Teachers Create a Community That Helps Students Build Understanding?	51
What Is the Role of Librarians As Leaders in Creating Communities That Foster Understanding?	53
4. Evidence-Based Practice and School Libraries: From Advocacy to Action	57
Ross J. Todd
The Beginnings	57
Evidence-Based Librarianship	58
Evidence-Based Education	60
School Libraries and Evidence-Based Practice	62
Merging Research and Practice	62
Identifying Learning Outcomes	63
Principles of Evidence-Based Practice	64
Know the Research, and Know the Research Intimately	64
Make Visible the Research Foundations of Your Practice in Your School	66

Make Student Learning Outcomes the Center of Your Evidence	67
Delaware Study	67
First New Jersey Study	68
Second New Jersey Study	69
Integrate Evidence-Generating Strategies in Your Practice That Focus on Learning Outcomes	70
Direct Measures	71
Levels of Data Collection	71
Curriculum Audit	71
Standardized Test Audit	72
Mesh Results of Local Evidence of Learning Outcomes with Other Evidence to Build a Continuous Improvement Plan	74
Disseminate, Celebrate, and Build Together on the Evidence-Based Outcomes	75
Conclusion	76
III. Developing Literacy in the Twenty-First Century	79
5. Family Literacy: The Dynamic Roles School Librarians Can Play	81
Bonnie Mackey and Sharon Pitcher
What Is Family Literacy?	82
Criteria for Family Literacy Programs	82
School Library Involvement in Family Literacy Programming	83
Critical Background Knowledge for the School Librarian	83
Recommended Family Literacy Practices	84
Reading Nights	84
Lending Libraries	85
Computer Nights	85
Additional Ideas	85
Planning for Family Literacy Programs	86
Funding Sources	86
Family Literacy Programming: A Possible Scenario	88
Conclusion	90
6. Reading the Web: The Merging of Literacy and Technology	93
Elizabeth Dobler
A Changing View of Literacy	94
A Changing View of Teaching	95
The Process of Web Reading	97
The Reader	97

Teaching Readers	98
The Text	98
Teaching about the Text	102
The Process	102
Teaching the Process	104
Final Thoughts	107
7. Literacy and Learning in a Digital World	111
Pam Berger
Literacy in the Digital Age: What Does It Mean to Be Literate in a Digital Age?	113
Learning in a Digital Environment: How Is Learning Different in a Digital Age?	116
Information and Communication Technology Reform: How Is the Education and Library Field Addressing ICT Reform?	118
ICT Frameworks and Assessments	118
The Role of the School Library: How Can School Librarians Take a Leadership Role in Preparing Students for the Twenty-First Century?	124
Concluding Thoughts	125
IV. Serving Diverse Student Populations	129
8. Special Education and Inclusion: Opportunities for Collaboration	131
Mary Jo Noonan and Violet H. Harada
The Inclusion Reform	132
Special Education Supports for Inclusion	133
Curricular Supports	133
Instructional Supports	133
Supporting Special Education Students: Strategies for the School Library Media Specialist	134
Collaborative Planning	135
Collaborative Teaching	139
Co-Teaching	139
Consultation	139
Providing Resource Support	140
Assistive Technology	140
Issues of Access	140
Fostering Relationships	141
Conclusion	142
9. Language, Culture, and the School Library	145
Denise E. Agosto and Sandra Hughes-Hassell

Language, Culture, and Learning	146
Language, Culture, and Student Assessment	146
Language, Culture, and the Comprehension of Information Resources	147
Language, Culture, and the Student Socialization Process	149
Implications for Practice	149
Supporting ELL and Minority Student Learning	150
Supporting ELL and Minority Student Socialization	154
Conclusion	156
V. Building Professionalism	159
10. The Real Thing: Authentic Teaching through Action Research	161
Carol A. Gordon
Why Perceptions Are Not Enough	161
What Is Action Research?	162
Origins of Action Research	163
Action Research and the School Library Program	166
Getting Started with Authentic Learning Tasks	168
Using Qualitative Data Collection Methods	170
What Does Action Research Look Like?	171
What Do School Librarians and Teachers Think about Action Research?	176
Conclusion	177
11. Professional Development in Communities of Practice	179
Joyce Yukawa, Violet H. Harada, and Daniel Suthers
Reflective Practice	179
Professional Development for Reflective Practice	180
Communities of Practice	181
Building Trusting Relationships	181
Participation	181
Creative Tensions	182
Designing for Learning in a Community of Practice	183
Structures for Participation	184
Initial Face-to-Face Engagement Activity	185
Building Teams: School-Based Planning and Implementation	186
Building Community Support: Online Mentoring Strategies	187
Building Community Support: Buddy Team Responses	188
Conclusion	190
Index	193
About the Editors and Contributors	201