

GLOBAL STAFFING

EDITED BY HUGH SCULLION AND DAVID G. COLLINGS

Contents

List of illustrations	ix
List of contributors	xi
Foreword	xiii
List of abbreviations	xv
1 Introduction	1
HUGH SCULLION AND DAVID G. COLLINGS
The major themes of the book	1
Staffing in context	1
The distinctive contribution of this book	6
Part 1: Global staffing: theory and practice	9
Part 2: Global staffing: composing the international staff	10
Part 3: Global staffing: emerging themes	10
Part 1
Global staffing: theory and practice	15
2 Approaches to international staffing	17
DAVID G. COLLINGS AND HUGH SCULLION
Models of staffing the multinational enterprise	17
Nationality and staffing	23
Toward a more dynamic understanding of global staffing	31
Conclusion	34
3 Strategic motivations for international transfers: why do MNCs use expatriates?	39
DAVID G. COLLINGS AND HUGH SCULLION
Motives for using expatriates	40
Empirical evidence on the purpose of expatriate assignments	40

The purposes of expatriate assignments: theoretical insights	41
Purposes of expatriate assignments: the empirical evidence	45
Expatriate assignments: value for money?	47
Conclusion	53
Part 2
Global staffing: composing the international staff	57
4 International recruitment and selection	59
HUGH SCULLION AND DAVID G. COLLINGS
Expatriate failure	59
Linking expatriate failure and adjustment	63
Expatriate adjustment	63
The core competencies of international managers	67
The selection of international managers in practice	71
Alternative resourcing approaches	73
Methods of attracting and sourcing international managers	76
Methods of selecting international managers	81
Conclusion	83
5 International talent management	87
HUGH SCULLION AND DAVID G. COLLINGS
Constraints on the supply of international managers	88
International talent management and the role of the corporate HR function	94
Managing the talent pipeline in the international firm	97
The competencies required for the HR function and the IHRM function	104
What are the competencies which will be required for the international HRM role in the future?	105
The challenge of developing transnational managers	107
Global mindset	109
Conclusion	112
6 Cross-cultural training	117
EMMA PARKINSON AND MICHAEL J. MORLEY
Defining and classifying cross-cultural training	118
The role of cross-cultural training in international staffing	120
Forms of cross-cultural training: experiential, cognitive and integrated approaches	124
The efficacy of cross-cultural training	131
Conclusion	132

7	Localisation: societies, organisations and employees	139
	WES HARRY AND DAVID G. COLLINGS
	The changing meaning of local responsiveness in international business	140
	Localisation of human resources	144
	Localisation in practice	150
	Conclusion	153
Part 3
	Global staffing: emerging themes	157
8	Alternative forms of international assignments	159
	HUGH SCULLION AND DAVID G. COLLINGS
	Reasons for the development of more flexible forms of global staffing	161
	International business travellers	163
	Global virtual teams	165
	Inpatriates: an emerging source of international management talent	170
	Conclusion	173
9	Women in international management	178
	MARGARET LINEHAN
	Profile of expatriate managers	179
	The international transfer cycle	179
	The impact of gender on women managers' international careers	183
	Women international managers and marital status	185
	Work–family conflict and women international managers	186
	Do female managers want international careers?	188
	Breaking the glass ceiling and glass border	190
	Conclusion	191
10	Repatriation: the frequently forgotten phase of an international assignment	196
	MARGARET LINEHAN
	Repatriation problems	197
	Additional difficulties faced by repatriated female international managers	200
	Career issues on repatriation	204
	Conclusions	206
	Index	211