

FIFTH EDITION

Health Promotion in Nursing Practice

Nola J. Pender
Carolyn L. Murdaugh
Mary Ann Parsons

Contents

Preface xiv

Introduction: Health Promotion and Disease Prevention: The Challenges of the 21st Century      3

PART 1. The Human Quest for Health      13

1. Toward a Definition of Health      15

Health as an Evolving Concept	17
Health and Illness: Distinct Entities or Opposite Ends of a Continuum?		18
Definitions of Health That Focus on Individuals	19
Definitions of Health That Focus on the Family	25
Definitions of Health That Focus on the Community	27
Measurement of the Meaning of Health	28
Directions for Research on the Meaning of Health	29
Directions for Practice in the Context of Holistic Health	30
Summary	30
Learning Activities	31
Selected Web Site	31

2. Individual Models to Promote Health      35

Human Potential for Change	37
Use of Multiple Theories in Behavior Change	37
A Prevention Model	38
The Health Belief Model	38
Mixed Models and Theories of Health Promotion and Prevention		40
The Theoretical Basis for the Health Promotion Model	50
The Health Promotion Model (Revised)	51
Interpersonal Influences	55
Interventions for Health-Behavior Change	57
Tailoring Behavior-Change Interventions	63
Maintaining Behavior Change	64
Ethics of Behavior Change	65
Directions for Research in Health Behavior	65
Directions for Practice in Motivating Health Behavior	66
Summary	66
Learning Activities	67
Selected Web Sites	67

3. Community Models to Promote Health      74

The Concept of Community	75
--------------------------	----	--

Community Assessment Interventions and Health Promotion		77
Community Ecological Models and Theories	78
Community Planning Models for Health Promotion	81
Community Dissemination Models to Promote Health	83
Directions for Research in Community-Based Models	87
Directions for Practice Using Community Models of Health		88
Summary	88
Learning Activities	88
Selected Web Sites	89

PART 2. Planning for Health Promotion and Prevention 93

---

4. Assessing Health and Health Behaviors		95
Nursing Frameworks for Health Assessment		96
Assessment of the Individual Client	98
Assessment of the Family	113
Assessment of the Community	116
Directions for Research in Health Assessment		119
Directions for Practice in Health Assessment		119
Summary	120
Learning Activities	120
Selected Web Sites	120
5. Developing a Health Promotion–Prevention Plan		125
Guidelines for Preventive Services and Screenings		127
The Health-Planning Process	127
Revisions of the Health Promotion–Prevention Plan		141
Community-Level Health Promotion–Prevention Plan		141
Directions for Research in Behavior Change		141
Directions for Practice in Behavior Change		142
Summary	142
Learning Activities	143
Selected Web Sites	143

PART 3. Interventions for Health Promotion and Prevention 145

---

6. Physical Activity and Health Promotion		147
Health Benefits of Physical Activity	149
Genetic and Environmental Effects on Activity Level		150
Life-Span Patterns of Physical Activity	152
Determinants of Physical Activity in Children and Adolescents		153
Determinants of Physical Activity in Adults	156
The Process of Physical Activity Behavior Change	158
Interventions in Primary Care to Promote Physical Activity		159

Tailoring Physical Activity Interventions	162
Intensity of Physical Activity	162
Risks of Physical Activity	163
Interventions in the Community to Promote Physical Activity		164
Directions for Research in Physical Activity	165
Directions for Practice to Promote Physical Activity		166
Summary	167
Learning Activities	167
Selected Web Sites	167
7. Diet, Nutrition, Prevention, and Health Promotion	172
The Role of Diet and Nutrition in Prevention and Health Promotion		174
Factors Influencing Eating Behaviors	179
Nutritional Needs of Special Populations	185
Interventions to Change Eating Behaviors	188
Meta-Analysis of Clinical Studies and Randomized Clinical Trials		189
Maintaining Recommended Weight	192
Initiating a Weight-Reduction Program	193
Directions for Research in Nutrition and Health		194
Directions for Practice in Nutrition and Health		195
Summary	195
Learning Activities	196
Selected Web Sites	196
8. Stress Management and Health Promotion	201
Stress and Health	204
Stress Across the Life Span	205
Approaches to Stress Management	208
Directions for Research in Stress Management		218
Directions for Practice in Stress Management		218
Summary	219
Learning Activities	219
Selected Web Sites	219
9. Social Support and Health Promotion	223
Social Networks	224
Social Support	226
Reviewing Social Support Systems	232
Social Support and Health	232
Identifying Social Support Strengths and Needs		235
Enhancing Social Support Systems	235
Directions for Research in Social Support		237
Directions for Practice in Social Support		238
Summary	238
Learning Activities	238
Selected Web Sites	238

PART 4. Evaluating the Effectiveness of Health Promotion 243

10. Measuring Outcomes of Health-Promotion and Prevention Interventions	245
Defining Health Outcomes	246
Deciding Which Health Outcomes to Measure	250
Developing a Plan to Measure Health Outcomes	254
Challenges in Measuring Health Outcomes	255
Directions for Research in Outcomes Measurement	256
Directions for Practice in Achieving Health Outcomes	257
Summary	258
Learning Activities	258
Selected Web Sites	258
11. Evaluating Individual and Community Interventions	261
Purpose of Evaluation	262
Approaches to Evaluation for Health-Promotion Interventions	263
Evaluation of Interventions with Individuals and Communities	266
Strategies for Evaluation of Health-Promotion Interventions	270
Directions for Research in Evaluating Health Promotion	272
Directions for Practice in Evaluating Health Promotion	273
Summary	274
Learning Activities	274
Selected Web Sites	274

 PART 5. Health Promotion in Diverse Populations 277

12. Self-Care for Health Promotion Across the Life Span	279
The Role of the Professional Nurse	281
Self-Care for Health Promotion Throughout the Life Span	282
Goals of Health Education for Self-Care	289
The Process of Empowering for Self-Care to Promote Health	290
The Role of the Internet in Self-Care Education	296
Directions for Research in Self-Care	297
Directions for Practice in Self-Care	298
Summary	298
Learning Activities	299
Selected Web Sites	299
13. Health Promotion in Vulnerable Populations	303
Health Status and Health Behaviors of Vulnerable Groups	304
Eliminating Health Disparities	306
Planning Culturally Competent Health-Promotion Interventions	307
Essential Characteristics to Consider in Designing Programs	308
Strategies for Implementing Culturally Appropriate Interventions	313
Directions for Research in Vulnerable Populations	314

Directions for Practice in Vulnerable Populations	315
Summary	315
Learning Activities	315
Selected Web Sites	316

PART 6. Approaches for Promoting a Healthier Society 319

14. Health Promotion in Community Settings	321
Health Promotion in Families	322
Health Promotion in Schools	324
Health Promotion at the Work Site	325
Health Promotion in Nurse-Managed Community Health Centers	327
The Community at Large as a Setting for Health Promotion	328
Creating Health Partnerships	329
The Role of Partnerships in Education, Research, and Practice	331
Directions for Research in Multilevel Health-Promotion Settings	333
Directions for Practice to Promote Health in Diverse Settings	334
Summary	334
Learning Activities	334
Selected Web Sites	335
15. Promoting Health Through Social and Environmental Change	337
Health as a Social Goal	338
Health in a Changing Social Environment	341
Promoting Health Through Public Policy	342
Promoting Health Through Environmental Change	344
Voluntary Change Versus Legislative Policy	348
Economic Incentives for Disease Prevention and Health Promotion	350
Directions for Research in Social and Environmental Change	352
Directions for Practice to Promote Social and Environmental Change	352
Summary	353
Learning Activities	353
Selected Web Sites	353