

CULTURAL STUDIES

THEORY & PRACTICE

THIRD EDITION

CHRIS BARKER

Contents

Foreword by Paul Willis	xxi
PART ONE: CULTURE AND CULTURAL STUDIES	1
1 An Introduction to Cultural Studies	3
Concerning this book	3
Selectivity	3
The language-game of cultural studies	4
Cultural studies as politics	4
The parameters of cultural studies	5
The Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies	6
Disciplining cultural studies	6
Key concepts in cultural studies	7
Culture and signifying practices	7
Representation	7
Materialism and non-reductionism	9
Articulation	9
Power	10
Popular culture	10
Texts and readers	10
Subjectivity and identity	11
The intellectual strands of cultural studies	12
Marxism and the centrality of class	12
Capitalism	13
Marxism and cultural studies	14
Culturalism and structuralism	15
Culture is ordinary	15
Structuralism	15
Deep structures of language	15
Culture as 'like a language'	17
Poststructuralism (and postmodernism)	18
Derrida: the instability of language	18

Foucault and discursive practices	20
Anti-essentialism	20
Postmodernism	21
Psychoanalysis and subjectivity	22
The Freudian self	22
The Oedipus complex	23
The politics of difference: feminism, race and postcolonial theory	23
Feminism	24
Race, ethnicity and hybridity	24
Central problems in cultural studies	25
Language and the material	25
The textual character of culture	26
The location of culture	27
How is cultural change possible?	28
Rationality and its limits	29
The character of truth	30
Questions of methodology	31
Key methodologies in cultural studies	32
Ethnography	32
Textual approaches	35
Reception studies	36
The place of theory	37
Summary	38
2 Questions of Culture and Ideology	39
Culture with a capital C: the great and the good in the literary tradition	40
Leavisism	40
Culture is ordinary	41
The anthropological approach to culture	42
Culturalism: Hoggart, Thompson, Williams	43
Richard Hoggart: The Uses of Literacy	44
Edward Thompson: The Making of the English Working Class	44
Raymond Williams and cultural materialism	45
High culture/low culture: Aesthetics and the collapse of boundaries	46
A question of quality	47
Form and content	47
Ideological analysis	48
The problem of judgement	48
Mass culture: popular culture	49
Culture as mass deception	49
Criticisms of the Frankfurt School	50

Creative consumption	50
Popular culture	51
The popular is political	54
Culture and the social formation	54
Marxism and the metaphor of base and superstructure	54
The foundations of culture	55
Culture as class power	56
The specificity of culture	56
Williams: totality and the variable distance of practices	57
Relative autonomy and the specificity of cultural practices	57
Althusser and the social formation	58
Relative autonomy	59
Articulation and the circuit of culture	59
Two economies	60
The question of ideology	61
Marxism and false consciousness	62
Althusser and ideology	63
Ideological state apparatuses	63
Fragmented subjects	64
The double character of ideology	64
Althusser and cultural studies	65
Gramsci, ideology and hegemony	66
Cultural and ideological hegemony	66
Ideology and popular culture	67
The instability of hegemony	68
Gramscian cultural studies	68
The problems of hegemony and ideology	69
Hegemony and fragmentation	69
Hegemony and power	70
Ideology as power	70
Ideology and misrecognition	71
What is ideology?	72
Summary	73
3 Culture, Meaning, Knowledge: The Linguistic Turn in Cultural Studies	75
Saussure and semiotics	76
Signifying systems	76
Cultural codes	77
Barthes and mythology	79
‘Myth today’	79
Polysemic signs	81

Poststructuralism and intertextuality	83
Derrida: textuality and différance	83
Nothing but signs	83
Différance	85
Derrida's postcards	86
Strategies of writing	86
Deconstruction	87
Derrida and cultural studies	89
Foucault: discourse, practice and power	90
Discursive practices	90
Discourse and discipline	91
The productivity of power	92
The subjects of discourse	93
Post-Marxism and the discursive construction of the 'social'	94
Deconstructing Marxism	94
The articulated social	95
Language and psychoanalysis: Lacan	96
The mirror phase	97
The symbolic order	98
The unconscious as 'like a language'	98
Problems with Lacan	99
Language as use: Wittgenstein and Rorty	100
Wittgenstein's investigations	100
Language as a tool	100
Language-games	101
Lyotard and incommensurability	102
Rorty and the contingency of language	104
Anti-representationalism	104
Truth as social commendation	105
Describing and evaluating	105
Culture as conversation	106
Culture as performance	107
Discourse and the material	108
Indissolubility	108
Languages for purposes	109
Summary	110
4 Biology and Culture: Questions of Reductionism and Complexity	111
The problem of reductionism	112
Forms of reduction	113

Complexity and holism	114
The capabilities of science	115
Languages for purposes	117
The cultured body	118
A body of theory	120
The medical body	122
The evolved body of biology	124
Natural selection and the place of genes	124
Evolutionary culture	125
Evolutionary psychology	125
The evolved brain	126
Some implications for cultural studies	128
Biology and culture: the case of emotions	129
Understanding emotion	129
Evolution and emotion	129
The emotional brain	130
Cognition, culture and emotion	131
The cultural construction of emotion	131
The circuit of emotion	132
Emotion as experience	135
Identity and emotion	135
Meme theory	135
Culture off the leash	136
Summary	137
PART TWO: THE CHANGING CONTEXT OF CULTURAL STUDIES	139
5 A New World Disorder?	141
Economy, technology and social class	142
Fordism	142
Post-Fordism	144
Reorganizing labour	145
The Regulation School	146
‘New Times’	147
Post-industrial society and the reconfiguration of class identities	148
The rise of the service class	149
Disorganized capitalism	150
Organized capitalism	151
Deconcentration and deindustrialization	151
Patterns of consumption	152

X CONTENTS

Postmodernization	152
The question of determination	153
Globalization	155
The dynamism of modernity	155
Global economic flows	156
Global cultural flows	157
Disjunctive flows	158
Homogenization and fragmentation	159
Cultural imperialism and its critics	159
Hybridity and complex cultural flows	161
Glocalization	162
Creolization	163
Globalization and power	163
Modernity as loss	164
The state, politics and New Social Movements	167
The decline of the nation-state and the end of history?	167
Form and competence	168
Autonomy	168
Legitimation	169
The fall of communism	169
The end of history?	170
New Social Movements	171
Displacing class?	172
Life-politics	173
Symbolic communities	174
Summary	175
6 Enter Postmodernism	177
Defining the terms	177
The institutions of modernity	178
The industrial revolution	179
Surveillance	179
The dynamism of capitalist modernity	179
The nation-state and military power	180
Modernism and culture	181
Modernism as a cultural experience	181
Risk, doubt and reflexivity	182
The flâneur	183
The dark side of modernity	183
Modernism as aesthetic style	185
The problems of realism	185

Fragmentation and the universal	187
The cultural politics of modernism	187
Modernisms	188
Modern and postmodern knowledge	188
The enlightenment project	188
Scientific management	189
Marxism as enlightenment philosophy	189
Scientific laws and the principle of doubt	190
The critique of the enlightenment	191
Foucault	192
Postmodernism as the end of grand narratives	195
The end of epistemology	196
Relativism or positionality?	197
The promise of postmodernism (or modernity as an unfinished project?)	197
Politics without foundations	198
Modernity as an unfinished project	198
The public sphere	199
A normative project	200
Postmodern culture	200
The reflexive postmodern	201
Postmodernism and the collapse of cultural boundaries	201
Bricolage and intertextuality	202
The aestheticization of everyday life	203
Postmodern aesthetics in television	203
Postmodern detectives and gangsters	204
The cartoon postmodern	205
Culture jamming	205
Subverting adverts	206
Evaluating postmodern culture	207
Depthless culture	207
Implosions and simulations	207
The cultural style of late capitalism	208
Transgressive postmodernism	210
Summary	211
PART THREE: SITES OF CULTURAL STUDIES	213
7 Issues of Subjectivity and Identity	215
Subjectivity and identity	215
Personhood as a cultural production	216
Essentialism and anti-essentialism	217

Self-identity as a project	217
Social identities	218
The fracturing of identity	218
The enlightenment subject	219
The sociological subject	219
The postmodern subject	220
Social theory and the fractured subject	220
The historical subject of Marxism	221
Psychoanalysis and subjectivity	221
Feminism and difference	223
Language and identity	224
The Foucauldian subject	225
The articulated self	227
Anti-essentialism and cultural identity	227
The articulation of identities	229
Sites of interaction	231
Agency and the politics of identity	231
The question of agency	231
Foucault and the problem of agency	232
Giddens and structuration theory	232
The duality of structure	233
The concept of agency	234
Agency as making a difference	235
Choice and determination	235
Modes of discourse	236
Originality	236
Innovation and change	237
Anti-essentialism, feminism and the politics of identity	238
Biology as discourse	238
Sex and gender	239
Is a universal feminism possible?	240
The project of feminism	242
Creating 'new languages'	243
Challenging the critique of identity	243
Strategic essentialism	244
Summary	245
8 Ethnicity, Race and Nation	246
Race and ethnicity	247
Racialization	247

Different racisms	248
The concept of ethnicity	249
Ethnicity and power	250
National identities	252
The nation-state	252
Narratives of unity	252
The imagined community	253
Criticisms of Anderson	254
Diaspora and hybrid identities	255
The idea of diaspora	255
The Black Atlantic	256
Types of hybridity	257
The hybridity of all culture	258
Hybridity and British Asians	258
From 'sojourners to settlers'	259
Switching cultural codes	259
Multiple identities	260
Intersections and boundary crossings	261
Weaving the patterns of identity	263
Race, ethnicity, representation	264
Savages and slaves	264
Plantation images	265
The criminalization of black Britons	265
Orientalism	266
Television and the representation of race and ethnicity	267
Whites only	267
Stereotyped representations	268
Signs of change	269
Menace to society	269
Assimilationist strategies	270
The ambiguities of representation	270
The new ghetto aesthetic	271
EastEnders	272
I'll Fly Away	272
The question of positive images	274
Postcolonial literature	275
Models of postcolonial literature	276
Domination and subordination	277
Hybridization and creolization	277
Summary	278

9 Sex, Subjectivity and Representation	280
Feminism and cultural studies	280
Patriarchy, equality and difference	281
Liberal and socialist feminism	282
Difference feminism	282
Black and postcolonial feminism	283
Poststructuralist feminism	283
Postfeminism	283
Sex, gender and identity	285
The science of sex	286
Women's difference	288
Irigaray and womanspeak	288
The social construction of sex and gender	290
Sex as a discursive construct	290
Sexed subjects	291
Foucault: subjectivity and sexuality	291
Sex and the discursive construction of the body	291
The feminist critique of Foucault	292
Ethics and agency	293
Psychoanalysis, feminism and sexed subjectivity	294
Regulating sexuality	294
Chodorow: masculinity and femininity	294
Phallogentric psychoanalysis	295
Julia Kristeva: the semiotic and the symbolic	296
Judith Butler: between Foucault and psychoanalysis	298
The performativity of sex	298
Identification and abjection	299
Drag: recasting the symbolic	299
The discipline and the fiction of identity	301
Men and masculinity	301
Problematic masculinity	304
The roots of male addiction	304
The betrayal of the modern man	305
Gender, representation and media culture	306
Images of women	307
The bitch, the witch and the matriarch	307
Affirmation and denial	308
Women of Bollywood	308
The Taming of the Shrew	309
The problem of accuracy	309
Subject positions and the politics of representation	310

The slender body	310
The independent mother	311
Representing persons with AIDS	311
Madonna's performance	312
Raunch culture	312
The question of audiences	313
Summary	314
10 Television, Texts and Audiences	315
Television as text: news and ideology	316
Putting reality together	316
The manipulative model	318
The pluralist model	318
The hegemonic model	319
Agenda setting	320
Gulf War news	320
Presentational styles	321
Television as text: soap opera as popular television	322
Soap opera as a genre	322
Women and soap opera	325
Soap opera and the public sphere	325
The active audience	326
Encoding–decoding	327
The Nationwide audience	329
Watching Dallas	330
Ideology and resistance	330
Television audiences and cultural identity	331
The export of meaning	331
Localizing the global	332
Audiences, space and identity	333
Family space and global space	334
The globalization of television	334
The political economy of global television	335
Synergy and television ownership	336
Deregulation and reregulation	337
Global electronic culture	338
Media imperialism	338
Regionalization	339
The global and the local	339
Global postmodern culture	341
Hyperreality and TV simulations	342

Consumer culture	343
Creative consumption	344
Summary	345
11 Digital Media Culture	346
Digital media	346
Digital divides	347
Cyberutopia	348
Information bomb	348
Cyberspace and democracy	349
The democratic vision	350
Intertextual hypertext	350
Web 2.0 participation	351
‘We can be heroes’	352
Cyberactivism	352
Meme wars	353
The limitations to cyber democracy	355
Cyber capitalism	356
Intellectual property	357
Democracy in the balance	358
Computer gaming	359
Research paths	359
Addicted to games	360
Gaming and identity	360
Cyberspace race	361
Playing multiple identities	361
Cyberfeminism	363
Cyborg manifesto	363
Representation and regulation	365
The global economy of cyberspace	367
The information economy	367
Private space	368
Convergence and the mobile phone	368
The mobile phone	369
Digital imperialism	370
Summary	371
12 Cultural Space and Urban Place	373
Space and place in contemporary theory	374
Time-geography	374
Time-space	375

Space and place	376
The social construction of place	377
Gendered space	377
The multiple spaces of Lagos	378
Cities as places	379
The Chicago School	380
Criticisms of urban studies	381
Political economy and the global city	382
Capitalism and the urban environment	382
Global cities	383
The post-industrial global city	384
The symbolic economy of cities	385
Cultural economics	386
The creative industries	388
Privatizing public space	389
The public culture of private elites	390
Disney: fantasy and surveillance	390
The postmodern city	391
Postmodern urbanization	391
Urban change: suburbs and edge cities	393
Urban unrest	394
Fortress LA	395
The excitement of the city	397
Cyberspace and the city	397
The information superhighway	398
Electronic urban networks	399
The informational city	400
Electronic homes in global space	402
The city as text	402
Classified spaces	403
The city which is not one	404
Summary	405
13 Youth, Style and Resistance	406
The emergence of youth	407
Youth as moratorium	407
Youth as cultural classification	408
The ambiguity of youth	409
Trouble and fun	409
Youth subcultures	410
Subterranean values	410

Magical solutions	411
Homologies	412
Motorbike boys	412
Resistance through rituals	413
The double articulation of youth	414
Teds, Mods and Skins	414
Signs of style	415
Critiques of subcultural theory	416
Youthful difference: class, gender, race	417
The self-damnation of the working class	417
Gendered youth	418
Another space for girls	418
Racialized youth	420
The artifice of black hair	421
Space: a global youth culture?	422
Rapping and raving around the globe	423
Syncretic global youth	424
After subcultures	425
Media spotlights	426
Media devils and subcultural hero(in)es	427
Postmodernism: the end of authenticity	427
Postmodern bricoleurs	428
Claims to authenticity	429
Distinctions of taste	429
Creative consumption	430
Common culture	431
Resistance revisited	432
Resistance is conjunctural	432
Resistance as defence	433
Inside the whale	433
Hiding in the light	434
Tactics and strategies	436
Banality in cultural studies	436
Resistance: the normative stance of cultural critics	437
Summary	438
14 Cultural Politics and Cultural Policy	440
Cultural studies and cultural politics	441
Naming as cultural politics	441
Cultural politics: the influence of Gramsci	442

Winning hegemony	442
The role of intellectuals	444
Cultural studies as a political project	445
Gramscian texts	446
The cultural politics of difference	448
New languages of cultural politics	448
The politics of articulation	449
No class-belonging	450
The 'cut' in language	451
Difference, ethnicity and the politics of representation	452
Invisibility and namelessness	452
Positive images	452
Multiculturalism and anti-racism	453
The politics of representation	453
Difference, citizenship and the public sphere	454
Habermas and the public sphere	455
The democratic tradition	455
Radical democracy	456
Questioning cultural studies	456
The critique of cultural populism	457
A multiperspectival approach	458
The circuit of culture	458
The cultural policy debate	459
Redirecting the cultural studies project	460
Governmentality	460
Culture and power	461
Foucault or Gramsci?	463
Policy and the problem of values	464
Shifting the command metaphors of cultural studies	465
The horizon of the thinkable	465
Criticism and policy	466
Neo-pragmatism and cultural studies	467
Pragmatism and cultural studies	468
Richard Rorty: politics without foundations	468
Anti-representationalism	468
Anti-foundationalism	469
Contingency, irony, solidarity	469
Truth as social commendation	469
Forging new languages	470
Prophetic pragmatism	470

XX CONTENTS

Private identities and public politics	471
The implications of pragmatism for cultural studies	472
Summary	473
Glossary: The Language-Game of Cultural Studies	474
References	491
Index	513