

PARADOXES

R. M. Sainsbury

THIRD EDITION

CAMBRIDGE

Contents

Foreword to third edition	page vii
Introduction	1
Suggested reading	3
1. Zeno's paradoxes; space, time, and motion	4
1.1 Introduction	4
1.2 Space	5
1.3 The Racetrack	11
1.4 The Racetrack again	15
1.5 Achilles and the Tortoise	19
1.6 The Arrow	19
Suggested reading	21
2. Moral paradoxes	22
2.1 Crime Reduction	22
2.2 Mixed Blessings	27
2.3 Not Being Sorry	31
2.4 Moral dilemmas	34
Suggested reading	39
3. Vagueness: the paradox of the heap	40
3.1 Sorites paradoxes: preliminaries	40
3.2 Sorites paradoxes: some options	46
3.3 Accepting the conclusion: Unger's view	48
3.4 Rejecting the premises: the epistemic theory	49
3.5 Rejecting the premises: supervaluations	51
3.6 Rejecting the reasoning: degrees of truth	56
3.7 Vague objects?	63
Suggested reading	66
4. Acting rationally	69
4.1 Newcomb's paradox	69
4.2 The Prisoner's Dilemma	82
Suggested reading	88

5.	Believing rationally	90
	5.1 Paradoxes of confirmation	90
	5.1.1 Background	90
	5.1.2 The paradox of the Ravens	95
	5.1.3 “Grue”	99
	5.2 The Unexpected Examination	107
	5.3 Revising the Unexpected Examination	110
	5.4 The Knower	115
	Suggested reading	120
6.	Classes and truth	123
	6.1 Russell’s paradox	123
	6.2 The Liar: semantic defects	127
	6.3 Grounding and truth	129
	6.4 The Strengthened Liar	132
	6.5 Levels	133
	6.6 Self-reference	137
	6.7 Indexicality	138
	6.8 Indexical circularity	139
	6.9 Comparison: how similar are Russell’s paradox and the Liar?	142
	Suggested reading	145
7.	Are any contradictions acceptable?	150
	7.1 Contradictions entail everything	151
	7.2 A sentence which is both true and false could have no intelligible content	152
	7.3 Three dualities	153
	7.4 Negation	155
	7.5 Falseness and untruth	157
	Suggested reading	158
	Appendix I: Some more paradoxes	160
	Appendix II: Remarks on some text questions and appended paradoxes	168
	Bibliography	172
	Index	179