

Workplace Health and Safety

International Perspectives on Worker Representation

---

Edited by
David Walters and Theo Nichols

Contents

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Notes on Contributors	xi
List of Abbreviations	xiii
Introduction: Representing Workers on Health and Safety in the Modern World of Work David Walters and Theo Nichols	1
Part I National Arrangements for Workers' Representation: Case Studies from Europe and Australia
1 Worker Representation on Health and Safety in the UK – Problems with the Preferred Model and Beyond Theo Nichols and David Walters	19
2 The Australian Framework for Worker Participation in Occupational Health and Safety Richard Johnstone	31
3 Health and Safety Committees in France: An Empirical Analysis Thomas Coutrot	50
4 Characteristics, Activities and Perceptions of Spanish Safety Representatives Ana M. García, Maria J. López-Jacob, Isabel Dudzinski, Rafael Gadea and Fernando Rodrigo	73
5 An Afterword on European Union Policy and Practice Laurent Vogel and David Walters	90
Part II Challenges and Strategies for Worker Representation in the Modern World of Work
6 Precarious Employment and the Internal Responsibility System: Some Canadian Experiences Wayne Lewchuk, Marlea Clarke and Alice de Wolff	109

vi Contents

7	Employee 'Voice' and Working Environment in the New Member States: Translating Policy into Practice in the Baltic States	134
	Charles Woolfson, Dace Calite and Epp Kallaste
8	Health and Safety Representation in Small Firms: A Swedish Success that is Threatened by Political and Labour Market Changes	154
	Kaj Frick
9	Trade Union Strategies to Support Representation on Health and Safety in Australia and the UK: Integration or Isolation?	177
	Rebecca Loudoun and David Walters
10	Worker Representation and Health and Safety: Reflections on the Past, Present and Future	201
	Phil James
	References	216
	Index	230