

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	x
The contributors	xiii
Editors' note	xix
Introduction	xxi
Chris Armstrong and Ray Lonsdale
Part 1 The production and distribution of e-books	1
Overview	1
1 Publishing e-books: challenges and perspectives	3
Joel Claypool
2 An introduction to e-book business models and suppliers	19
Anna Grigson
3 Producing eBooks on Demand: a European library network	37
Silvia Gstrein and Günter Mühlberger
4 E-books for free: finding, creating and managing freely available texts	53
Kate Price

Part 2 Planning and developing an e-book collection	69
Overview	69
5 E-books for public libraries	71
Martin Palmer
6 E-books for further education	93
Karen Foster and Emma Ransley
7 E-books for higher education	117
Jim Dooley
Part 3 Delivering e-books to library users.....	139
Overview	139
8 Making e-book collections visible to readers	141
Anna Grigson
9 Providing guidance, training and support for readers using e-books	163
Karen Gravett
10 Information technology and e-books: challenges and opportunities	181
James Clay
Part 4 Engaging readers with e-books	199
Overview	199
11 Public library users connecting with e-books.....	201
Martin Palmer
12 Engaging students with e-books in further education.....	217
Sue Caporn, Lee Bryant, Karen Foster and Emma Ransley
13 Engaging staff and students with e-books in a university setting.....	237
Anne Worden and Timothy Collinson

Part 5 The future of e-books	253
Contributors' views.....	255
Part 6 Useful information	267
Glossary	269
Top tips from the contributors	279
Checklist for e-book acquisition.....	285
Selected e-book suppliers.....	289
Accessible e-book services in public libraries Denise Dwyer	293
Supplementary reading	299
Index	303