

Differentiated Instructional Strategies _____ for the _____ Block Schedule

Gayle H. Gregory • Lynne E. Herndon

Contents

Acknowledgments	viii
About the Authors	ix
1. Introduction	1
Why the “Block”?	2
Why Differentiation?	2
What Is Differentiation?	2
2. Who Are the Learners?	7
Learning Styles	9
Thinking Styles	12
Emotional Intelligences	16
The World of the Future	21
The Adolescent Brain	24
Meeting the Needs of Individual Learners	26
3. Planning for Instruction	28
Curriculum Design	28
Long-Range Planning	32
Considerations for Planning	39
Lesson-Planning Models for the Block	41
4. Classroom Management	53
Effective Management	53
Physical Space	55
Discipline, Rules, and Procedures	57
Time Management	60
Student Responsibility	70
Guest Teachers	73

5. Brain-Based Learning	78
Brain Research	78
Accessing Prior Knowledge	90
Promoting Higher-Level Thinking	105
6. Lesson Plans in Action	115
Strategies for Lectures	116
Note-Taking Strategies	118
Interactive Notebooks	123
Strategies for Using Textbooks	126
Wrapping Things Up	141
7. Evidence-Based Best Practices	163
The Essential Nine Strategies	163
Multiple Intelligences	178
Cubing	189
8. Cooperative Learning	202
Overview of Cooperative Learning	202
Planning Cooperative Lessons	207
Teacher Considerations	229
Grouping Students	232
Managing Groups	235
Assessing Cooperative Learning	238
9. Assessing Student Learning	240
Assessment Process	240
Student Understanding	241
Brain-Compatible Assessment	242
10. Using Assessment to Adjust, Compact, and Group	264
Pre-Assessment	265
Formative Versus Summative Assessment	266
Adjustable Assessments	267
Curriculum Compacting	272
Flexible Grouping	279
11. Technology Integration	280
Technology Today	280
Why Use Technology?	282
Implementing Technology	284
Differentiating Instruction With Technology	287
Technology Toolbox	293
Assessing Student Outcomes That Involve Technology	301

12. Final Thoughts	305
Research Findings	306
Lessons Learned	306
Recommendations for Practice	307
Checklists for Teaching in Extended Periods of Instructional Time	310
Final Reflections	312
References	314
Index	320

Additional materials and resources related to Differentiated Instructional Strategies for the Block Schedule can be found at <http://www.corwin.com/distrategies>