

TALENT IDENTIFICATION AND DEVELOPMENT IN SPORT

INTERNATIONAL PERSPECTIVES

ROUTLEDGE

EDITED BY JOSEPH BAKER,
STEVE COBLEY AND JÖRG SCHORER

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	ix
Contributors	xi
Preface	xvii

- 1 Identification and development of sport talent: a brief introduction to a growing field of research and practice
Steve Coble, Jörg Schorer and Joseph Baker 1

SECTION ONE

Theoretical and conceptual models for understanding talent identification and development 11

- 2 Do genes predict potential? Genetic factors and athletic success
Joseph Baker 13
- 3 Building talent development systems on mechanistic principles: making them better at what makes them good
Aine MacNamara and Dave Collins 25
- 4 Environmental influences on early development in sports experts
Sean Horton 39

5	Identifying and developing skill expertise: understanding current limits and exploring future possibilities Damian Farrow	51
6	Developing talent in athletes as complex neurobiological systems Ian Renshaw, Keith Davids, Elissa Phillips and Hugo Kerhervé	64
SECTION TWO
International case studies of talent identification and development		81
7	Talent identification and development in women's artistic gymnastics: the Talent Opportunity Program (TOPs) William A. Sands	83
8	Who are the superstars of tomorrow? Talent development in Dutch soccer Marije T. Elferink-Gemser and Chris Visscher	95
9	Talent identification, selection and development in UK junior rugby league: an evolving process Kevin Till, Chris Chapman, Steve Copley, John O'Hara and Carleton Cooke	106
10	Back to the future: a case report of the ongoing evaluation of the German handball talent selection and development system Jörg Schorer, Dirk Büsch, Lennart Fischer, Jan Pabst, Rebecca Rienhoff, Peter Sichelschmidt and Bernd Strauß	119
11	Explaining African dominance in running Yannis Pitsiladis	130
12	Applying talent identification programs at a system-wide level: the evolution of Australia's national program Jason Gulbin	147
13	Lessons learned: the future of research in talent identification and development Joseph Baker, Jörg Schorer and Steve Copley	166