Contents

Contents of the CD Rom vii
Key for icons xi
Preface xiii
Acknowledgements xiv
About the author xvi

Part One Thinking about Learning and Learning about Thinking 1

1 What does this book offer? 3

2 Why should we teach thinking and learning skills? 6
What are the arguments for teaching thinking and learning? 8

3 What are thinking and learning skills? 10
How are thinking and learning skills defined in this book? 10
Key areas covered in the programme 12
A few words about 'metacognition' 13
Why is this the 'right' method to choose? Can't thinking and learning mean different things to different people? 13
INSET sheet: Education is what survives when you've forgotten all that you learned 14

4 How do you teach thinking and learning? 15
The THINK! programme 'starter kit' 15

5 How do I use the THINK! programme in practice? 17
The structure of a typical lesson 17
Curriculum application 18
How does the 'Heads together' section work? 18

6 Tips for success: questions and answers 20
20 Dispositions of an Active Thinker and Learner 23
Self-reflection sheet: What's the best way forward for me? 26

7 What could I do to take this further? 27
Continuing the programme 27
Culture change 27
Support for teaching staff 27
Involving parents 28
Widening the impact 28
Further resources 28

Part Two The THINK! Programme 29

Overview documents 29
THINK! skills overview 31
Thinking and learning skills strategies and games: a complete list 32
'Heads together': development of skills 34

Lesson plans with lists of resources on the CD Rom and 'At a Glance' samples 35
Year 1 36
Year 2 53
Year 3 71
Year 4 89
Year 5 107
Year 6 125

Part Three General Resources for All Year Groups 143
'At a Glance' sample of general resources on the CD Rom 145
'Heads together' resources 146
'Heads together' Introductory Session 146
Sample class rules for 'Heads together' discussions 147
'Heads together' suggested topics and stimuli 148
Philosophy for Children: Generating the Question Session 150
Philosophy for Children: Discussion Session 151

References 152

Index 155