Contents

	Series editors' preface	xi
	Acknowledgements	xiii
	Conventions	xv
1	Figurative Language	1
	1.1 The scope of this book	1
	1.2 This book in the context of current research on figurative language	5
	1.3 Our approach to figurative language	10
	1.4 Aims and overview of this book	23
	References	26
2	A framework for analysing variation in figurative language use	31
	2.1 Introduction	31
	2.2 Studies of text-types and metaphor	32
	2.3 Compiling, analysing and comparing corpora of text-types	38
	2.4 Genre	40
	2.5 From genre to register	46
	2.6 Conclusion	51
	References	52
3	Using genre and register to analyse figurative language	55
	3.1 Introduction	55
	3.2 Littlemore's (2001) study of academic discourse	56
	3.3 Deignan and Semino's (2010) study of a speech by Tony Blair	71
	3.4 Conclusion	86
	References	87

4 Figurative language use in specialized and popular scientific written texts 89
4.1 Introduction 89
4.2 Discourse communities, science and popularization 89
4.3 Metaphor in science 94
4.4 Figurative language in two research articles and a New Scientist article 105
4.5 Conclusion 123
References 125

5 Figurative language in spoken academic discourse between expert and non-expert interlocutors 128
5.1 Introduction 128
5.2 Genre 133
5.3 Register 135
5.4 Methodology 138
5.5 Metaphor and metonymy in the exchanges 139
5.6 Conclusion 163
References 164

6 Figurative language in a children's nursery 167
6.1 Introduction 167
6.2 Datasets 168
6.3 Methodology 171
6.4 Figurative language in the nursery data 172
6.5 Conclusion 187
References 188
Appendix 189

7 Figurative language in supporting and reporting on children's football 191
7.1 Introduction 191
7.2 Figurative language use in professional football journalism 192
7.3 Datasets 194
7.4 Methodology 199
7.5 Differences in figurative language use between the reports and the supporters' discourse 201
7.6 What figurative language is used to talk about 210
7.7 Players' understanding of figurative language use 217
7.8 Figurative language use and understanding within a genre–register framework 224
7.9 Conclusion 227
References 229

8 Figurative language in the 'simplification' of canonical literary works: Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet 231
8.1 Introduction 231
8.2 Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet 232
8.3 The simplified version of Romeo and Juliet in Shakespeare Made Easy 239
8.4 The adaptation of figurative language in the Shakespeare Made Easy version of Romeo and Juliet 242
8.5 Conclusion 263
References 265

9 Figurative language, creativity, and multimodality in the communication of chronic pain in two different genres 267
9.1 Introduction 267
9.2 Pain and communication 268
9.3 Conventional figurative resources for the expression of pain in English 270
9.4 The McGill Pain Questionnaire 273
9.5 The Perceptions of Pain artworks 279
9.6 Conclusion 298
References 302

10 Conclusion 305
10.1 Introduction 305
10.2 Research methodologies 306
10.3 Figurative language and genre 307
10.4 Figurative language and register 312
10.5 Concluding remarks 316
References 320

Index 321