

CONTENTS

About the Authors	viii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Image credits	xii
1 READING PICTURES	1
1.1 The trouble with pictures	1
1.2 An introductory example	2
1.3 Unnatural vision	7
1.4 Reading narratives	9
1.4.1 Formal readings	11
1.5 Planning a research project with visual methods	13
2 ENCOUNTERING THE VISUAL	17
2.1 On television	17
2.2 Visual forms produced I: representations of society	18
2.2.1 Interpreting Forest of Bliss	21
2.2.2 Still and moving images	24
2.3 Visual forms produced II: representations of knowledge	25
2.3.1 Visualization	26
2.3.2 Networks	29
2.3.3 Diagrams of Nuer lineages	33
2.4 Visual forms encountered	36
2.4.1 Encountering 'indigenous' media	36
2.4.2 The image as evidence	39
2.5 'Us' and 'them'?	44
3 MATERIAL VISION	50
3.1 Object and representation	50
3.2 The materiality of visual forms	51
3.2.1 Displaying family photographs	54
3.3 Exchanged goods	57
3.3.1 Market exchange	58
3.4 Size matters	61
3.5 Transformations: digitization and computer-based media	63
3.5.1 Digital manipulation	64
3.5.2 Digital pornography: constraining the virtual	66
3.5.3 Digital pornography: exchange and circulation	68

4 RESEARCH STRATEGIES	73
4.1 Silk thread to plastic bags	73
4.2 Researching image use and production in social contexts	78
4.3 Watching television	80
4.3.1 Soap opera in India and Egypt	82
4.3.2 Television as a social presence	85
4.4 Doing things with photographs and films	86
4.4.1 Photo-elicitation with archival images	86
4.4.2 Photo-elicitation with contemporary images	89
4.4.3 Learning from photo-elicitation	92
4.4.4 Film-elicitation	94
4.5 Working with archival material	97
4.5.1 Photographic archives and picture libraries	98
4.5.2 Film archives	100
5 MAKING IMAGES	106
5.1 Observing	106
5.2 Creating images for research	107
5.3 Documentation	108
5.3.1 A ladder climbed then discarded	110
5.3.2 Documentary exploration	112
5.3.3 Documentary control	113
5.4 Collaborative projects	114
5.5 Indigenous media collaborations	117
5.5.1 Collaborative after-effects	121
5.6 Ethics and visual research	122
5.6.1 Ethical review	126
5.6.2 Permissions	127
5.7 Returning images	128
6 PRESENTING RESEARCH RESULTS	133
6.1 Audiences	133
6.2 Presenting photographs	137
6.2.1 The photographic essay	139
6.3 Presenting ethnographic and other films	141
6.3.1 Study guides and other contextualization	142
6.4 Databases and digital images	145
6.4.1 Can computers see?	145
6.5 Multimedia projects	149
6.5.1 Interacting with the Yanomamö	152
6.6 Copyright	155

CONTENTS

VII

7 PERSPECTIVES ON VISUAL RESEARCH	162
7.1 The state of visual research	163
7.2 The place of visual research	164
7.3 The nature of visual research	165
Bibliography	168
Filmography	182
Index	184