

Contents

- List of contributors, vi
- Preface, viii
- 1 Integrating biological control into a conservation context: why is it necessary?, 1
Kevin M. Heinz, Roy G. Van Driesche, and Daniel Simberloff
- 2 Designing restoration programs based on understanding the drivers of ecological change, 4
Christian O. Marks and Roy G. Van Driesche
- 3 Matching tools to management goals, 22
Charlotte Causton and Roy G. Van Driesche
- 4 Tools in action: understanding tradeoffs through case histories, 54
Roy G. Van Driesche, Bernd Blossey, and Daniel Simberloff
- 5 Benefit–risk assessment of biological control in wildlands, 80
Roy G. Van Driesche and Daniel Simberloff
- 6 Systematics and biological control, 105
Jeremy C. Andersen and David L. Wagner
- 7 Forecasting unintended effects of natural enemies used for classical biological control of invasive species, 130
Mark S. Hoddle
- 8 Measuring and evaluating ecological outcomes of biological control introductions, 161
Bernd Blossey
- 9 Methods for evaluation of natural enemy impacts on invasive pests of wildlands, 189
Roy G. Van Driesche
- 10 Cases of biological control restoring natural systems, 208
Roy G. Van Driesche, Paul D. Pratt, Ted D. Center, Min B. Rayamajhi, Phil W. Tipping, Mary Purcell, Simon Fowler, Charlotte Causton, Mark S. Hoddle, Leyla Kaufman, Russell H. Messing, Michael E. Montgomery, Riëks van Klinken, Jian J. Duan, and Jean-Yves Meyer
- 11 Societal values expressed through policy and regulations concerning biological control releases, 247
Andy W. Sheppard and Keith D. Warner
- 12 Managing conflict over biological control: the case of strawberry guava in Hawaii, 264
M. Tracy Johnson
- 13 An ethical framework for integrating biological control into conservation practice, 277
Keith D. Warner
- 14 Economics of biological control for species invading wildlands, 294
Roy G. Van Driesche and Kevin M. Heinz
- 15 The future of biological control: a proposal for fundamental reform, 314
Bernd Blossey
- Concluding thoughts on future actions, 329
Roy G. Van Driesche, Daniel Simberloff, and David L. Wagner
- Index, 330