Contents

The Contributors 7
Foreword: Jim Miller 10
Introduction: Winnie Wade 12

PART ONE: BROAD ISSUES IN FLEXIBLE LEARNING

Chapter 1: Flexible Provision for Student Diversity 19
Keith Hodgkinson

Chapter 2: Flexibility in Course Structures 26
John Costello

Chapter 3: Flexible Learning and Information Technology in Higher Education 35
Phil Wild

Chapter 4: Off-site Support for Flexible Learners: Learning in No Man's Land 46
Alison Smith and Winnie Wade

Chapter 5: Course Guides for Flexible Learning 57
Keith Hodgkinson

Chapter 6: Flexible Learning and the Library 68
John Arfield

PART TWO: FLEXIBLE LEARNING IN ACTION – INDIVIDUAL CASE STUDIES

Introduction 79

Chapter 7: Coping with Larger Classes: Flexible Learning in Geography 81
Ed Brown and Jonathan Beaverstock

Chapter 8: A Flexible Learning Strategy for Design and Technology Students 89
Joyce Cubitt, Tony Hodgson and Eddie Norman

Chapter 9: A Flexible Learning Scheme for a First-year Mathematics Module 99
Peter Lewis

Chapter 10: A Self-guided Information Technology Profile for Student Teachers in Primary Schools 106
Keith Hodgkinson and Phil Wild

Chapter 11: A Business School Approach to Flexibility in Course Provision 112
Alison Smith

Chapter 12: A Distance Learning Programme for Design Engineers 119
Ian Wright

Chapter 13: Flexible Learning in English 127
Brian Jarvis

PART THREE: THE STUDENT VIEW OF FLEXIBLE LEARNING

Chapter 14: Student Opinion of Flexible Teaching and Learning in Higher Education 135
Richard Clark

Index 151