

lecturing

a practical guide

Sally Brown & Phil Race

Contents

Foreword	v
Acknowledgements	vii
1. Introductions	1
2. What is 'lecturing'?	13
Lecturing is... 14; What does this tell us? 19
3. Histories, philosophies and architecture	21
Architectures... 25; The lecture theatre: a place for learning? 26; So what can we do? 30; Conclusion 40
4. Why have lectures?	41
What really is the use of lectures? 44; Rationales for lectures 48; Why lecture...? 49; Reasons enough for lectures? 60
5. What can you do in your lectures?	62
Lecturers' views 62; Actions speak louder than words? 65; Making our words work 72; Towards a teaching taxonomy? 77
6. Lecturing tools	80
So what tools have we to master now? 84; Fit-for-purpose usage of lecture-room tools 86; From blackboards to whiteboards? 86; Using on-screen words and images 88; Using overhead projectors 91; Data projectors, computers and laptops 95; Using presentation packages 97; 'Now you see it, now it's gone' 102; Don't panic 102; Conclusion 104

7. What can students do in lectures?	106
What do lecturers expect? 106; What do students do (or expect to do) in lectures? 107; Analysing what students do in lectures 109; Keeping attention engaged 113; What about learning payoff during lectures? 114; What else can lecturers do in lectures to help keep students focused and attentive? 123; Conclusion 124
8. Before and after lectures	125
What do lecturers do before their lectures? 125; So what could we do before our lectures? 127; What about after a lecture? 128; What do lecturers want students to do before and after lectures? 134
9. Linking lectures to other teaching/learning activities	140
So where do lectures fit into the bigger picture of teaching and learning? 143; Linking lectures to tutorials 146; Linking lectures to seminars 150; Minding all those other gaps! 156
10. Inclusive lecturing: encompassing diverse students	159
Hearing impairments 162; Sight impairments 163; Dyslexia and other specific learning difficulties 164; Mobility impairments 164; Mental health issues 165; Hidden impairments 165; What about the workers? 166
11. How do I know how I'm doing?	168
Feedback or evaluation? 170; Methods for obtaining student feedback on lecturing 171; Methods for gaining feedback from peers 178; Evaluating your own lecturing 181
Appendix: More definitions of 'lecturing'	185
Postscript	194
References and further reading	195
Index	198