

TES

THE TIMES EDUCATIONAL SUPPLEMENT

2000 TIPS
for Teachers

edited by NICK PACKARD & PHIL RACE

Contents

Foreword ix

Our aims in this book xi

Part 1 Tips across the curriculum 1

Techniques for effective teaching and classroom management

Meeting a class for the first time 2; Gaining attention and settling a class down 3; Coping with interruptions 4; Learning names 5; Avoiding disruption in your class 6; Using blackboards 7; Organizing practical lessons 9; Doing yard/bus/break duties painlessly 10; Ensuring equality of opportunity within your teaching 11; Strategies for raising achievement 12

Planning and assessment

Assessing pupils' work 14; Giving pupils face-to-face feedback 16; Getting feedback from pupils 17; Using self- and peer-assessment 18; Making sense of new structures 19; Planning schemes of work 20; Invigilating internal exams 22; Writing reports 23; Preparing for an inspection 24

Using teaching and learning resources well

Preparing interesting handout materials 26; Preparing learning packages 27; Getting the most from the library 28; Organizing resources 29; Making do with limited resources 30; Making your classroom into an attractive learning environment 31; Making effective displays 33; Taking pupils on a trip 34; Visiting museums and art galleries 35

Supporting pupils' learning

Supporting pupils who don't read well 37; Helping pupils who don't do maths well 38; Helping pupils to learn together 39; Helping pupils to revise effectively 40; Helping pupils to pass exams 42; Helping pupils to be creative 43; Helping pupils to write essays 44

Providing personal and pastoral care

Being an effective form tutor 45; Getting pupils to talk to you 46; Helping pupils who don't believe in themselves 47; Coping with emotional pupils 49; Breaking bad news 50; Helping pupils to recover from setbacks 51; Helping pupils towards university or employment 52; Coping with parents' evenings 53; Dealing with difficult parents 54; Coping with emergencies 55

Being an effective colleague

Working with colleagues 57; Coping with difficult heads of department or senior staff 58; Managing a department 59; Covering for absent colleagues 60; Coping with stress 61; Planning your career progression 62; Applying for jobs 63

Information and Communications Technologies

Choosing computer-aided learning packages 65; Getting pupils used to the idea of learning from a machine 68; Getting pupils used to mouses and keyboards 70; Finding out how computer-assisted learning is going 71; Using e-mail to support learning 73; Helping pupils to get started with e-mail 74; Giving pupils feedback using e-mail 76; Helping pupils to learn with computer conferencing 77; Using video for learning 80; Using audiotapes for learning 82; Using multimedia packages for learning 84; Helping pupils to learn from the Internet 85; Using the Internet for learning 87

Part 2 Particularly for primary teachers 89

Classroom management and organization

Preparing yourself for a lesson 90; Preparing the children for a lesson 91; Organizing an integrated day 93; Providing for practical activities 94; Providing for consolidatory activities 96; Keeping children on task 97; Involving children 98; Different teaching styles 100; Using other adults in the classroom 101; Using other professionals in the classroom 102; Displaying work 104

Curricular responsibilities

Managing time 105; Coordinating a curriculum area 107; Covering the National Curriculum 108; Ensuring continuity and progression 109; Extracurricular activities 111; Getting the most from In-Service Training (INSET) 112; Offering INSET 113; Communicating with colleagues 115; Policies and schemes of work 116; Making learning processes meaningful to children 118; Planning a new topic 119

Pastoral care

Dealing with upset children 121; Play times 122; Making children feel secure and comfortable 124; Helping children to build self-esteem 125; Dealing with bad behaviour 127

Making and managing resources

Obtaining resources 128; Choosing and using printed learning resources 130; Deciding on what's most important for you to do 131; Identifying and filling in the gaps 132; Using other people to produce classroom resources 134; Access to resources 135; Accessing materials and resources outside school 136

Assessment and record keeping

Keeping track of progress 138; Assessment and planning 140; Learning outcomes 141; National Curriculum assessment 142; Assessing work 144; Formal and informal assessment 145; Evidence of achievement 147; Marking work and giving feedback 148; Self-assessment 149; Assessing children with special needs 151; Differentiation 152

Your professional life

Inspection 154; Appraisal 156; Mentoring and supporting student teachers 157; Being a newly qualified teacher 159; Working with outside agencies 161; Liaising with parents or carers 162; Looking after yourself 164; Coping with your workload 166; Being an effective colleague 167; Working with administrative and support staff 168; Ten things you should never do 170; Home truths 171

Part 3 Information Technology 173

Coping with ICT in the primary classroom

Getting to grips with hardware and software 175; Managing IT work in the classroom 176; Developing self-supporting activities 178; Effective use of support materials 179; Planning appropriate activities for ICT 181

IT as a discrete subject

Why consider ICT as a discrete subject? 183; What should I teach in IT? 184; Covering the IT National Curriculum 185; Integrating IT with the curriculum 187; Planning for continuity in IT 188

IT as a cross-curricular subject

Organizing IT work in other curriculum areas 190; ICT in language 192; ICT in maths 194; ICT in science 195; ICT in foundation subjects 197

Supporting special educational needs with IT

Deciding on appropriate input devices 199; Adapting computer interfaces 201; Developing activities 202; Developing support for children with SEN 204; Stretching more able children 206

Resources for teaching IT and ICT

What can your equipment do? 207; Starting points... for teachers 209; Starting points... for pupils 210; Building in support for activities 212; Targeting IT use 213; Maximizing potential 214

Resources for the implementation of ICT

Access to equipment (for children) 216; Organization of resources 217; Effective continuity and progression 219; Helping to ensure compatibility and consistency 220; Offering INSET 222; Disseminating information 223

Trouble-shooting, top good habits, and home-school links

If it doesn't work... 224; The top 12 good habits to teach 226; Developing home-school links 227; Jargon-busting ICT terms for education 228; Some British educational acronyms and abbreviations 241

Part 4 Special educational needs 244

Strategies for enhancing learning by children with special needs

Strategies for effective communication and problem solving using good listening skills 245; Suggestions for teachers of mathematics on how to support pupils with SEN 246; Strategies to support pupils who are school or classroom refusers 248; Helping pupils who have English as a second language 250; Facilitating the completion of examination coursework 251; Supporting pupils with a hearing impairment 253; The use of writing frames to assist pupils in non-fiction writing 254; Supporting refugee pupils in the classroom 256; Identifying pupils who are working at a significantly lower level than their peers 257; Identifying pupils with low self-esteem 258; Strategies to improve low self-esteem in pupils 260; Establishing successful school contact with parents and carers 261; Responding to physical impairment 263; Devising or modifying homework 264; Identifying strengths and weaknesses for multi-sensory teaching strategies 266; Multi-sensory teaching strategies for Specific Learning Difficulties 268; Looking after your needs as a teacher of pupils with SEN 269

Improving unacceptable behaviour

Devising and evaluating a diagnostic behaviour questionnaire 271; Strategies to cope with rude and negative behaviour 272; Dealing with pupils whose emotional and behavioural difficulties lead to disaffection and isolation in the classroom 274; Assisting the reintegration of excluded pupils 275; Supporting pupils who are being bullied 277; Helping bullies to change their behaviour 278; Improving the ethos of a problem class 279; Dealing with disruption in the classroom 281

Further reading 283

Index 285