Chapter 9

Complex Cognitive Processes 310

Cognitive Learning	312
Concepts: Categories That Simplify the World	312
Theories of Concept Learning	313
Examples: The Key to Learning and Teaching Concepts	314
Concept Mapping: Embedding Concepts on Complex Schemas	315
Concept Learning: Misconceptions and Conceptual Change	316
Learning and Teaching Concepts: Instructional Strategies	317
Problem Solving	319
Well-Defined and Ill-Defined Problems	320
A Problem Solving Model	321
Expert-Novice Differences in Problem-Solving Ability	323
Helping Learners Become Better Problem Solvers: Instructional Strategies	324

Using Technology to Improve Problem-Solving Ability	328
Problem-Based Learning	329

The Strategic Learner	330
Metacognition: The Foundation of Strategic Learning	330
Study Strategies	331
Developing Strategic Learning in Students: Instructional Strategies	333
Critical Thinking	334
Transfer of Learning	338
General and Specific Transfer	338
Factors Affecting the Transfer of Learning	339
Assessment and Learning: The Role of Assessment in Transfer	342
Windows on Classrooms	344

Chapter 10

Theories of Motivation 348

Extrinsic and Intrinsic Motivation	350
Motivation to Learn	351
Behavioral Views of Motivation	351
Using Rewards in Classroom: Instructional Strategies	352
Humanistic Views of Motivation	353
Development of the Whole Person	353
Humanistic Views of Motivation: Instructional Strategies	356
Cognitive Theories of Motivation	357
Expectancy x Value Theory	358
Self-Efficacy: Beliefs About Capability	361
Goals and Goal Orientation	362
Attribution Theory	367
Beliefs, Goals, and Attributions: Instructional Strategies	369
Self-Determination Theory	371
Assessment and Learning: The Role of Assessment in Self-Determination	374
Developing Students' Self-Determination: Instructional Strategies	375
Affective Factors in Motivation	378
Self-Worth Theory	378
Arousal and Anxiety	379

Chapter 11

Motivation in the Classroom 386

Class Structure: Creating a Learning-Focused
Environment 388

Self-Regulated Learners: Developing Student
Responsibility 389

Developing Self-Regulation: Applying Self-
Determination Theory 390

Helping Students Develop Self-regulation:
Instructional Strategies 390

Teacher Characteristics: Personal Qualities That Increase Student Motivation and Learning 393

Personal Teaching Efficacy: Beliefs About Teaching and Learning 393

Modeling and Enthusiasm: Communicating
Genuine Interest 395

Caring: Meeting the Need for Relatedness 395

Teacher Expectations: Increasing Perceptions of Competence 397

Demonstrating Personal Qualities That Increase
Motivation: Instructional Strategies 399

Climate Variables: Creating a Motivating
Environment 401

Safety and Order: Classrooms as Secure Places to Learn 401

Success: Developing Learner Self-Efficacy 402

Challenge: Increasing Perceptions of Competence and Self-Determination 402

Task Comprehension: Increasing Perception of Control and Value 403

Instructional Variables: Developing Interest in Learning Activities 404

Introductory Focus: Attracting Students' Attention
405

Personalization: Links to Students' Lives 407

Involvement: Increasing Intrinsic Motivation 408

Feedback: Meeting the Need to Understand 410

Applying the Climate and Instructional Variables in Your Classroom: Instructional Strategies 410

Assessment and Learning: Using Feedback to Increase Interest and Self-Efficacy 412

Technology and Learning: Using Technology to Increase Learner Motivation 414

The Motivating Effects of Technology: Theoretical Explanations 415

Technology and Motivation: Cautions and Guidelines for Teachers 416

Motivation and Diversity 416

Motivation Problems: Student Perspectives 417

Motivation Problems: Possible Solutions 418
