

Teaching, Learning & Study Skills

A Guide for Tutors

Tom Burns & Sandra Sinfield

Contents

List of resources	x
1 Introduction and how to use this book	1
Coverage	1
Welcome	1
Background	1
Study skills, teaching and learning development	2
How to use this book	3
Essential Study Skills	4
Finally	5
2 University teaching, widening participation and study skills	6
Coverage	6
Introduction – but is it ‘education’?	6
What is happening to university education?	7
Management generation of strategy	7
Widening participation	8
Changing HE – the discourses of learning development	10
Learning development and ‘skills’	11
HE and the skills agenda	11
Resolution	12
What can the HE practitioner do?	12
Notes	13
Bibliography and further reading	13
3 How to assess – a short preface on assessment	16
Coverage	16
Introduction	16
Assessment per se	16
How will I assess that?	17
The changing HE environment	19
Conclusion	20
Bibliography and further reading	20

4	How to understand our students	22
	Coverage	22
	Our students	22
	WP students' expressed aims	23
	Attitudes to our students	24
	Self-perception	24
	Embedding learning development – helping our students succeed in HE	25
	Does HE orientation and learning development make a difference?	27
	Final comments	29
	Conclusion	30
	Note	31
	Bibliography and further reading	31
5	How to promote an effective transition to HE	33
	Coverage	33
	Introduction	33
	Problematizing HE not the student	34
	Choosing a university	34
	Supporting HE orientation	37
	Sixth-form and FE tutors and institutions	37
	HE tutors/institutions	38
	HE orientation – some things to consider	38
	More orientation: academic communities, teaching and learning practices and cultural capital	39
	Conclusion	43
	Resources	44
	Note	44
	Bibliography and further reading	44
6	How to promote student self-confidence	46
	Coverage	46
	Introduction	46
	Caught on the cultural cusp	47
	The non-traditional student in HE	48
	How we do it	49
	Overall conclusion	58
	Bibliography and further reading	58

7	How to promote effective organisation and time management	60
	Coverage	60
	Introduction	60
	How we do it	63
	Overall conclusion	72
	Resources	72
	Further reading	73
8	How to promote effective research and reading strategies	74
	Coverage	74
	Targeted research and active reading – and the reflexive student	74
	How we do it	77
	Overall conclusion	94
	Resources	95
	Further reading	95
9	How to promote effective note-making	96
	Coverage	96
	Introduction	96
	Notes and creative learning	99
	How we do it	100
	The practice lecture – note-making from lectures	105
	Resources	111
	Bibliography and further reading	112
10	How to promote effective presentations and seminars	113
	Coverage	113
	Why oral assignments?	113
	How we do it	117
	How to promote effective seminars	130
	Overall conclusion	132
	Resources	133
11	How to promote effective writing	134
	Coverage	134
	Introduction	134
	Changes in the HE environment	135
	Writing and learning development	135

Embedding learning development – again	136
How we do it	136
Overall conclusion	154
Resources	154
Notes	154
Bibliography and further reading	155
12 How to promote effective revision and exam techniques	156
Coverage	156
Introduction	156
Exams – the feared event	157
How we do it	158
Overall conclusion	170
Resources	170
Note	170
Bibliography and further reading	170
13 How to promote effective group work	171
Coverage	171
Introduction	171
How we do it	174
Overall conclusion – mourning the group	182
Resources	182
Note	182
Bibliography and further reading	182
14 How to promote reflective practice	184
Coverage	184
Introduction	184
Learning development and the learning log	185
Model it first	187
How we do it	188
Personal development portfolios	190
Overall conclusion	192
Resources	193
Notes	193
Bibliography and further reading	193
15 How to promote overall success	194
Coverage	194
Introduction	194

An embedded approach	195
Conclusion	198
Bibliography and further reading	199

Appendices

A: Bibliographic and online resources for 'HE orientation'	201
B: EA199 An introduction to academic studies: reflecting, learning and communicating	203

Resources	217
------------------	------------

Index	263
--------------	------------