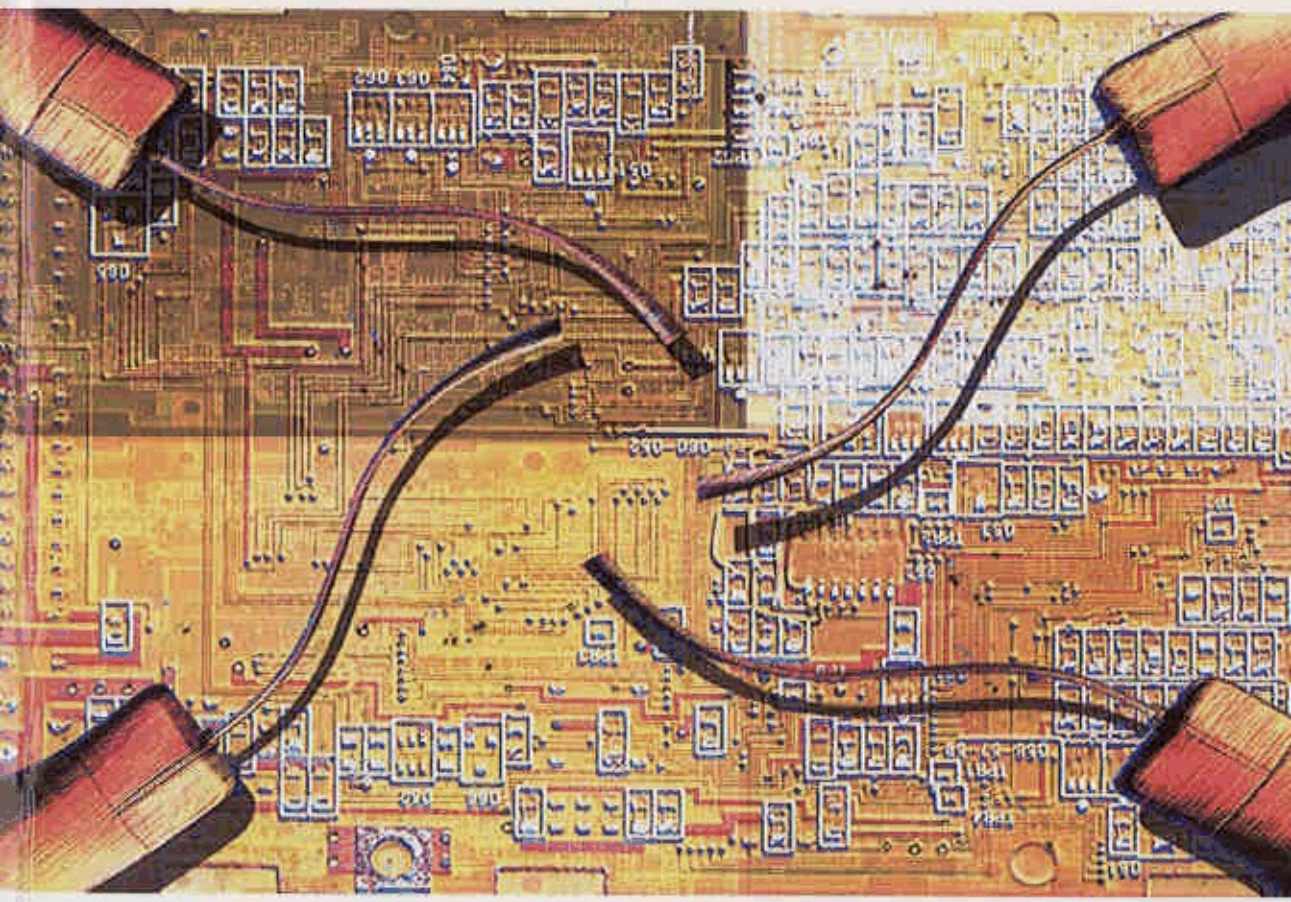
INTERNET-BASED WORKPLACE COMMUNICATIONS

Industry and Academic Applications



Kirk St.Amant & Pavel Zemliansky

Internet-Based Workplace Communications:
Industry & Academic Applications

Table of Contents

Foreword vi
David Blakesley, Purdue University, USA

Preface x
Kirk St.Amant, Texas Tech University, USA
Pavel Zemliansky, James Madison University, USA

Section I: Computer Technology in Written Communication Instruction: A Historical Overview

Chapter I
Forty Years with Computer Technology: A Personal Remembrance of Things Past 1
Mark D. Hawthorne, James Madison University, USA

Section II: Online Approaches to Teaching Communication

Chapter II
Hypertext Theory and Web Writing Assignments in the Writing and Professional Communication Classroom 24
Wendy Warren Austin, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, USA

Chapter III
Millennium Leadership Inc.: A Case Study of Computer and Internet-Based Communication in a Simulated Organization 40
Stacey L. Connaughton, Rutgers University, USA
Brent D. Ruben, Rutgers University, USA

Chapter IV
Expanding the Classroom: Using Online Discussion Forums in College and Professional Development Courses 68
Shawn McIntosh, Rutgers University, USA

Section III: Perspectives for Internet-Based Collaboration

Chapter V
Creating Community in the Technical Communication Classroom 88
Timothy D. Giles, Georgia Southern University, USA

Chapter VI
Virtual Networks: Mapping Community-Based Collaboration and Professional Writing 107
Melody Bowdon, University of Central Florida, USA

Chapter VII
MOOs: Polysynchronous Collaborative Virtual Environments 130
Rhonna J. Robbins-Sponaas, Florida State University, USA
Jason Nolan, University of Toronto, Canada

Section IV: Internet Approaches to English as a Second Language Instruction

Chapter VIII
Developing a Web-Based Course for the Conventional English Grammar Classroom: Issues in Planning and Design 157
Julia Lavid, Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain

Chapter IX
A Bridge to the Workplace: Using an Internet-Based Simulation in the Writing Classroom 180
Mark R. Freiermuth, University of Aizu, Japan

Section V: Internet-Based Tutoring

Chapter X
The State of Online Writing Labs: Have They Fulfilled Their Potential? 211
Jo Mackiewicz, University of Minnesota Duluth, USA

Chapter XI
Is This a Real Person? A Tutor's Response to Navigating Identity in the Spaces of a Synchronous Electronic Writing Center 231
Amy Lee Locklear, Auburn University–Montgomery, USA and Kaplan College Online, USA

Section VI: Future Trends in Computer Use for Written Communication

Chapter XII
Telework: A Guide to Professional Communication Practices 261
Nancy A. Wiencek, Monmouth University, USA

Chapter XIII
An Open Source Primer 278
Brian Still, Texas Tech University, USA

Chapter XIV
Cut and Paste: Remixing Composition Pedagogy for Online Workspaces 299
John Logie, University of Minnesota, USA

About the Editors 317

About the Authors 318

Index 323